Teach to ELICIT is designed to build constructive resilience in children + teachers + schools and through them strengthen the infrastructure of education and well-being support in conflict impacted territories.

Long years of turmoil, uncertainty and despair impacts not just individuals but all systems functioning on ground. The biggest blows are taken by systems of education and care (physical, emotional, infrastructural, and social)

Inefficient framework of emotional well-being | Hazy foresight |

Disrupted agencies for constructive mobility | Loss of routine | PTSD |

Limited access + exposure | Burden of uncertainty | Lack of recreational space | Lack of focus |

With scarce avenues for psycho-social growth and mature experiences of despair, the generation that is growing up in Conflict have a reduced sense of purpose and an unrealised agency to construct alternatives.
